A WHITED SEPULCHER.

The Extraordinary Revelations of the Pall Mall Gazette.

The Maiden Tribute of Modern Babylon, London.

The London special correspondent of the New York Post cables that journal as follows: As hinted some time ago, an extraordinary revelation has just burst upon us through the Pall Mall Gazette. This paper created a sensation last Saturday by a "frank warning to our readers," saying that as the criminal law amendment to the bill to increase the age at which a female can become a consenting party to an unlawful cohabitation seemed likely not to pass, it had determined to lay the cause for it before the public, and it warned its readers who wished still to live in a false heaven of purity not to read the Pall Mall Gazette for three days. To-day it prints five pages on the subject, entitled "The Maiden Tribute of Modern Babylon." It shows that the trade in young girls for immoral purposes has greatly increased. An editorial, entitled "We Bid You Be of Hope," says:

If chivalry is extinct and Christianity effete, there is still another enthusiasm to which we may with confidence appeal, namely, the combined forces of democracy and socialism.

I have just had a long interview with Mr. Stead, the editor of the Gazette. His investigations began months ago. All were conducted by members of his staff, with one outside. The total expense was over £200. He said: "I have oscillated for months between bishops and brothers." The tale he tells is far too horrible for me to repeat, but the work carries the conviction that all has been done in absolute sincerity with a worthy aim and with the knowledge of persons whose names are a world-wide guarantee.

"I recognize fully all the harm I shall do," said Mr. Stead, "but the certain good will be immeasurably greater. We will pass the bill, but after what I have gone through none of us will ever be the same men again."

Mr. Stead authorizes me to say that he gives his personal word as a voucher of the absolute accuracy of the whole revelation.

BY NO MEANS OVERDRAWN.

"The case," said he, "is much understated." After receiving assurance that the information given will not be made use of for criminal proceedings, he is prepared to give names, dates and proofs to either the Archbishop of Canterbury, Cardinal Manning, Earl Shaftesbury, Samuel Morley, M. P., Earl Dalhousie or Howard Vincent, as representing the English church, the Catholics, philanthropy and non-conformity. Mr. Stead says:

"I will go to prison many times, if subpœnaed, before publishing the names of people who have given us the details. I am an investigator, not an informer; but all the same I have my hands on a veritable modern Minotaur who lives in Piccadilly."

As regards the details of these articles, of which four or five pages each will appear in the next three days, I know you will prefer that I should simply state that they are filled with horrors, positively indescribable. The articles are classified into—

(1) The sale, purchase and violation of children; (2) procurations; (3) the entrapping and ruin of women; (4) an international slave trade in girls; (5) atrocities and brutalities.

"The significant thing is," said Mr. Stead, "that there has not been the slightest interference by the police in all the crimes which we pretended to want to commit. The only time they stopped us was when we tried to rescue one of the victims."

Of course the disclosure has caused a sensation throughout the country. I can only repeat my belief in the accuracy of the facts and the worthiness of Mr. Stead's motives. Certainly, nobody lately need to have been ignorant of the existence of an awful underside of London life. Mr. Stead says he does not fear prosecution unless somebody else reveals the names.

DRUGGED AND RUINED GIRLS.

Published facts in relation to the revelations of the Pall Mall Gazette show a frightful state of affairs. The "legal age" of women in England is fixed at 13, and taking advantage of this license to prey upon children, young girls have been enticed and drugged by the paid tools of prominent men of London. One procuress confesses that a leading physician purchased from her an average of three young girls in two weeks, paying therefor from $25 to $35 each. The Gazette says that some of the houses in which young girls are lured have underground rooms and some are country villas, which have thick walls, and are furnished with double carpets and heavily curtained windows, securely closed by thick shutters; and in one of these places a girl might scream like murder, and her cries be unheard. One woman said that in her experience she found that drugged and ruined girls never knew what happened to them until the next morning. Then they would cry a good deal from pain and a sense of their humiliation and ruin. In 99 cases out of 100 the victims were usually girls under 15, and when they realized their position they would abandon hope and lead a life of shame thenceforth. A well-known member of Parliament laughed heartily when asked what he knew or surmised concerning the traffic in young girls. He said: "It is true that maids are obtained at so much a head. I myself have procured a hundred at $25 each. The girls knew what they were doing, and it is nonsense to call it rape. They know their purity is a realizable asset, and they are not slow to set a price upon it."

ELOQUENT ADDRESSES BY WOMEN.

A mass meeting of the women of London was held at Princess Hall yesterday afternoon to consider ways and means to protect young girls from the horrible pitfalls of London as revealed by the Pall Mall Gazette. Mrs. Booth and other ladies made eloquent addresses. The meeting resolved that the laws on the subject should forthwith be made more effective; denounced state regulation of vice; demanded the total repeal of the contagious diseases act; and that the age of consent be raised from 13 to 18. The meeting also voted to send a record of its proceedings to the House of Commons.

Highest Bridge in the World in B. C.

Sir Henry Tyler has returned to the east from his visit to the Rockies. He said they had gone to the end of the track and had seen Stoney Creek bridge, the highest viaduct in existence, now in course of construction. It will be 220 feet high and 450 in length. They rode down on horseback into the valley, some 900 feet in depth, and thence up to the summit of the pass through the Selkirk range, about 1000 feet, and saw the process of construction.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The Regular Meeting—Some Important Questions Discussed.

The regular meeting of the Board was held last evening, Mr. D. R. Harris in the chair and all the members being present.

Mr. Hayward spoke of the courtesy of the naval authorities at Esquimalt in allowing the scholars to visit the Constance, and Mr. McMicking moved that the thanks of the Board be tendered to the officers of the Constance.

The Secretary submitted the reports of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, showing the standing of the pupils at the late examinations, also the monthly reports from teachers, showing an average daily attendance of 776.60, being an average of 45.86 to each teacher.

Mr. Braden, while the subject of examinations was up, said he did not agree with teachers examining their own pupils, as it was very unfair. Strangers not acquainted with the pupils should be brought to conduct the examination. He did not say that favoritism had been shown, but it might be.

A letter was read from Miss G. A. Williams, Principal of the girls' school, tendering her resignation. On motion it was received and accepted, and the thanks of the Board were ordered to be tendered to Miss Williams for the efficient manner in which she has discharged her duties.

An account was submitted of the proceeds of the concert in aid of the prize fund, showing the gross receipts to have been $181.75, expenses $42, and leaving net receipts $139.75. The Secretary said that the amount realized was not quite sufficient to pay off the indebtedness, as there was still a balance of $6.08 to be provided for, which could be secured by subscription.

Mr. Braden moved that the report of the concert be received and entered on the minutes, and that a vote of thanks be tendered to Mr. Offerhaus and the teachers taking part, for the success they had accomplished. Carried.

A communication was read from Mr. J. A. Halliday, calling attention to a number of improvements that require to be made to the school grounds and buildings during the holidays.

Mr. Higgins called attention to the dangerous condition of the water closets at the central school.

Mr. Braden said they were a disgrace to the school, and some way should be devised to improve them.

Mr. McMicking mentioned some repairs that should be made to the ward schools.

On motion of Messrs. Higgings and Braden a committee of three—Messrs. Braden, Heisterman and McMicking—were appointed to visit the several schools and report on the repairs required at each.

The secretary reported that he had received ten applications for the different positions in the public schools and for promotions, most of them being for the principalship of the girl's school. Applications were laid on the table till next meeting, when result examination of teachers will be known.

Mr. Higgins, from the committee appointed to prepare rules of order, submitted a report, which was taken up seritim, amended and adopted.

The secretary was authorized to advertise for a teacher to take Miss Williams' place.

Mr. Higgings said that he found, by a short canvass of the town, that many children of school age were growing up in a state of partial ignorance, by being employed in shops and thus debarred from learning anything. They were mostly children of poor parents. He moved that the Board request an early interview with the provincial government and Mayor and city council for the purpose of bringing before those bodies the urgent demand that exists for a free night school, so that children whose necessities require them to work during the day may enjoy the advantages of an education in the evening. The mover said that seventy-two boys and girls were employed in the various work shops of the city. The resolution was seconded by Mr. McMicking and carried.

Mr. Higgins said that while striving to make this city a political and commercial centre, we should also strive to make it an educational centre. He moved that the secretary be instructed to correspond with the governments of Ontario, Manitoba and the Pacific states and territories relative to the best methods to be adopted for establishing and endowing a university in Victoria.

Mr. Braden, in seconding the motion, said it was a step in the right direction. It would not only be for the benefit of our children, but it would keep considerable money in the country that now goes out of it, and that would be a great blessing of itself. He did not think there was a place in the world better fitted for an institution of this kind.

Mr. Hayward thought if this resolution were adopted we would be moving in a direction that we had no right to move in. Although he agreed with the proposition, he thought we would be taking a step that would strangle it at its birth. A resolution, asking the government to take the initiative, would be the correct course. After collecting all this information what were we going to do next?

Mr. Braden said pupils would come here from the east to be educated and the Dominion government would help us.

Mr. Higgins said that his object was to bring this question before the country and then agitate. We want first the information, and then he would move another resolution calling upon the local government to take the matter up, and he had a strong belief that they would aid it.

The resolution was carried and the Board then adjourned.

A New Bank.

The Traders Bank of Canada has begun operations, with its head office in Toronto, and H. S. Strathy, founder of the Commerce and Federal banks, as its cashier and general manager. The capital of the new bank is $1,000,000, of which the sum of $800,000 is already subscribed, and eighty per cent in calls have been declared payable. Mr. Strathy is a thorough financier, well versed in the wants of the country, and will undoubtedly make the Traders a success.

Through Traffic.

A St. Paul dispatch says that the Northern Pacific business at Duluth for the month of June is reported to be nearly double that for June last year. Shipments of wool from Washington Territory and silver ore and bullion from Montana to the east and Europe are now growing heavy, and the daily receipts are very large.

SUPREME COURT.

(Before Hon. Justice Crease.)

The extradition case of Isaac N. Hibbs, ex-postmaster of Lewiston, Idaho, was set for hearing to-day and Mr. J. P. Walls, for the U. S. government, asked for a further remand, and asked that Hon. John Goode be heard in behalf of the government.

Hon. John Goode, solicitor-general of the United States, stated that the United States government were doing all in their power to hasten the case, but there were certain circumstances which contributed to a delay. The forged money orders had been drawn on offices in different parts of the United States, to which access was very difficult, and all these offices had to be communicated with. It had been expected that the district-attorney in that part of Idaho would prepare the case but other duties prevented. The witness had arrived in Lewiston on July 3rd and had taken certain depositions there. As these had to be authenticated at Washington Mr. Brown, post office inspector, started at once with the papers and would probably leave Washington for this place about the 20th. He, therefore, on behalf of his government, asked for a remand of the case.

The case was accordingly remanded until Wednesday, 22nd.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

H. O. Bristow, charged with obtaining money under false pretences, by issuing checks. Money having been paid into the bank, prosecution was withdrawn.

James Glassie, assaulting Randolph Shewan. The prisoner had been in the employ of the Truck and Dray Co., and was discharged a few days ago, the complainant being hired in his place. Yesterday at the corner of Government and Broughton streets, prisoner assaulted complainant and knocked him off his dray. The offence was admitted. Fined $10 and $2 costs.

John Phillips, assaulting Demetrius Dogand, by striking him on the head with a stick. Both are Greeks. Complainant testified that the assault took place this morning about 6 o'clock, when he was making his boat fast at the foot of Telegraph street. Prisoner had threatened to kill him before, but he did not know what was the reason, as they had had no quarrel. The stick used in the assault was produced. Antonio Cato, a Portuguese, who witnessed the fight, testified that the prisoner struck plaintiff twice with sticks, breaking the first one over his head. He struck him hard enough to kill anyone, and he saw blood from the wounds made. Joseph Mulaviteh, a Russian, was put in the box, but as he knew nothing about the fracas and only heard threats made some months ago that prisoner would kill defendant, he was ordered to stand down. The prisoner was sworn, and deposed that in passing, plaintiff called him down to the boat, and threw a stick that he had in his hand at him, which did not strike him. They then began fighting, and afterwards complainant hit him on the hand and threw rocks at him. The row was caused by the green-eyed monster; the plaintiff wanting to marry a young lady in the locality, and was jealous seeing prisoner passing near her house. The magistrate thought the case should be further investigated, and adjourned it till to-morrow, setting prisoner at liberty.

Thos. Martin and Geo. Severn, charged with breaking into the premises of Mr. Thompson and stealing a quantity of guns and pistols, valued at several hundred dollars. Mr. Blanchard appeared for the defendants and applied for summary trial; but the magistrate held that it was an indictable offence and was a case for a higher court. The Superintendent of Police asked for a remand until Friday, which was granted.

Joe Kumear, a half-breed, supplying an intoxicant to Indians. Prisoner is said to be known to the police as a disreputable character, and a continued source of annoyance on the Indian reservation. Fined $50 or two months.

British Politics.

A London special to the New York Sun says: It is becoming very evident that the Tories do not intend to be easily dislodged from the ascendancy which they accidentally obtained. The party managers are daily growing more vigorous and aggressive. Their latest enterprise is the formation of a conservative league, which is to flood the country with Tory papers. The new organization has a capital of $500,000 and is supported by 700 of the richest aristocrats of England. Lord Randolph Churchill has accepted the presidency of the league. It proposes to meet the Whigs and Radicals on their own ground to show that their panaceas are not only impracticable, but are thinly disguised plans of self-seeking demagogues, and to convince the newly enfranchised electors that the Tories are the only politicians who have in the past made the franchise valuable, and are, therefore, the only ones to be trusted in the future. Newspapers are to be established wherever they will aid the Tory propaganda; tracts are to be distributed by the ton, and speakers, brass bands and torchlight processions are to be provided in every borough that is to return a member at the general election.

Changed Ownership and Politics.

The exceedingly clever and sprightly Sun newspaper of Winnipeg, has been purchased by the Conservatives of that city, and hereafter will be known as the Manitoban, under which name it appeared last Monday. It is understood that in future it will advocate the interest of the Conservative party and extend a cordial support to the present local government. During its three years of existence the Sun had an uphill contest, yet it managed to forge gradually ahead until it occupied a front rank in northwest journalism. If Mr. T. H. Preston has been retained as managing editor of the new aspirant for public patronage there can be no better man found for the position. It will now be seen whether the other journals in that city will recognize the Manitoban or not. Hitherto apparently they were in Egyptian darkness as to the Sun's existence for its name they never mentioned.

Reached Winnipeg.

Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney, whose husbands were slaughtered by Big Bear's Indians at the Frog Lake massacre, arrived in Winnipeg on the 8th, on their way to join friends in Eastern Canada. They are terribly grief-stricken. A Battleford dispatch says that Color Sergeant Valignette, of the Sixty-fifth battalion, was accidentally shot while coming down the river. The troops expect to reach Winnipeg about Saturday next.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

(While the columns of THE TIMES are open for the discussion of questions of public interest by correspondents, it may be understood that it does not necessarily endorse, nor coincide with, the sentiments expressed by writers in this column.)

The Straits Cable.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—My attention has been drawn to the frequent interruptions of Victoria's telegraphic communication. I am afraid our merchants, and those interested in the towing business are not aware what an egregious blunder was made by the government when it allowed the cable, connecting this island with the American shore, to be laid to Dungeness instead of to Port Angeles, distant only 18 miles, and the terminus of the government line from Tatoosh light house. Apart from the advantages of a shorter route, and consequently less liability to interruption, I will simply point to the following fact: A telegram from Tatoosh requesting a tug-boat goes via Port Angeles and Dungeness to Port Townsend, is returned to Dungeness and finally reaches Victoria, costing about $1. If the cable is not in working order, as is frequently the case, the same message necessarily takes the round-about way by Seattle, New Westminster and Victoria, costing them about $2.40. Were our cable laid, terminating at Pt. Angeles, directly opposite Victoria, the time would be reduced to a minimum, and the charges for the same message only 50 cts. Now, Mr. Editor, is it not reasonable to ask what has our government been doing when it laid this cable, and did it not benefit our neighbors at our expense when it yielded, as it evidently must have done, to some adverse influence? In conclusion I will state that the working of a cable laid between these two nearest points would hardly ever be interrupted, as the bottom is sandy and almost perfectly level, (see V. I. Pilot) so that there could not be the least objection to its being practicable. A word to the wise is sufficient.

JOHN BULL.

Victoria, July 14.

MARINE NOTES

The Sir James Douglas, with Capt. Lewis on board, arrived last night from a visit to the light houses.

The bark Alden Besse, Capt O'Brien, has been chartered to load spars and lumber, and carry Chinese passengers to Hongkong.

The Alexander went to Burrard Inlet this morning to tow the Sir Jamsetjee Family, lumber ladened, to sea.

The shipping agency established by Capt. Clements, on Langley street, will be much appreciated by ship masters.

The British ship Narwhal is to go into Hunter's Point dry dock, San Francisco, to be caulked and coppered.

The bark Cowlitz has arrived at Melbourne from Port Gamble, having lost a portion of her deck load and split her sails.

The item published in this column yesterday to the effect that the steamer Wilmington had made her last trip to the Sound, and copied from the Whatcom Reveille, was entirely incorrect. The Wilmington is advertised to sail from San Francisco for this port to-morrow, 15th inst., and will continue in the future to make her trips as usual.

C. P. R. Construction.

Construction on the C. P. R. is being pushed rapidly from the east. The Sentinel estimates that there are fully ten thousand men in the Rockies and Selkirks. In places the work goes on continuously—the men working eight hour shifts, as they do in the mines, the electric light being used at night. The whole of the line, from Griffin Lake east, is now under contract and in the hands of eastern men. Last week five hundred men were brought from the other side of the Columbia. The contractors will bring in 250 men a week until the line is covered.

Fires in the Mountains.

The Sentinel says that a number of bush fires are raging in the mountains, and seriously impede railway work. Through the Eagle Pass a force of men have to be kept constantly employed clearing the road of fallen trees, and repairing burnt bridges and culverts. It is thought that a number of ties will be burned unless heavy rains fall within the next few days. In the Salmon Arm the fires are as bad. On Tuesday last about 25,000 ties were burned on the right-of-way.

The Scott Act Killed.

The Senate on the 6th inst., by a vote of 30 to 15 decided on insisting upon their amendments to the Scott Act being sustained by the Commons and the bill was sent back to the Commons with the wine and beer clauses restored. Senator Macdonald voted with the majority and Senator McInnes with the minority. If the act as amended passes the Commons it will be of very little value from a temperance point of view.

Seattle's Civic Election.

The civic election in Seattle yesterday passed off very quietly. Mr. Yesler was elected mayor by a majority of 648 over Leary the late mayor. Mr. Woolery was re-elected chief of police by a majority of 413. Hanford for city attorney; Hughes for assessor. Councillors—Messrs. Harrington, Young, Keenan, Calligan, McDonald, Post, Hall, Lake and Furth, obtained the highest votes in their respective wards.

Going Back to China.

King Fook Wing Chong, Chu Chong and one or two other Chinamen have chartered the Alden Besse to carry a large number of Chinamen back to the flowery kingdom. The amount of the charter is unknown, but is believed to be some here in the neighborhood of six or seven thousand dollars. About five hundred celestials will take passage by this vessel, and, we hope, will never be permitted to return.

The Park Well.

The well at Beacon Hill Park, in which the Council recently placed a pump, is said by a number of gentlemen who drank at it last Sunday, to be only a few degrees better than what can be got out of any stagnant pool. A drain requires to be opened from the well, and this can be done at a small expense. To render the work already done in providing a pump of some use to the public, a little more money should be expended with a view to purifying the water.

Teachers' Institute.

A Teachers' Institute will be held in the city to-morrow by the teachers who are now in attendance at the examination. Educational matters will be discussed by those interested.

J. C. McLAGAN, Manager.

MR. SOGARO, the missionary to whom M. ROCHEFORT attributed the story of the death in Egypt of Olivier Paine, declares that the story as far as it concerns him was fabricated.

PERSIANS complain of a continual Russian violation of Persian territory and meddling with Persian affairs. Ten thousand Russians are massed at Askabad.

MR. HENRY HOUGH, for the last twenty years editor and proprietor of the Cobourg, Ont., World, has lately purchased a controlling interest in Grip, published in Toronto. Mr. Hough has the best wishes of his fellow craftsmen for his success.

SIR RONALD THOMPSON, British minister to Persia, has demanded that the Persian government suppress a French newspaper published at Hebran, for reasons similar to those given for the suppression of the Bosphore Egyptian.

THE Russian press comments at considerable length on the conferring of the decoration of the order of the Bath on SIR PETER LUMSDEN, and the reported intention of the British government to appoint SIR AUSTIN BAYARD as embassador to Turkey, which are considered direct demonstrations against Russia.

AS AN instance of railway freight rates at the present day, the San Francisco Grocer states that the Northern Pacific railroad has contracted to haul wheat from Oregon to Chicago at 32 cents a hundred pounds. This is at the rate of 19 cents and 2 mills a bushel for transporting it about 2500 miles.

THE first formal indication of radical enmity toward the present government was furnished the other evening in the House of Commons. SIR WILFRED LAWSON, the radical member for Carlisle, gave notice that he would move to-morrow to refuse to grant to the government the entire command of the time of the House.

THE GRAND DUKE and hereditary GRAND DUKE of Hesse, PRINCESSES IRENE and ALICE, PRINCE ALEXANDER of Hesse and the Princess of Battenburg, will leave Berlin for Darmstadt on the 19th inst., with PRINCE HENRY of Battenburg, to be present at the marriage of the latter to the PRINCESS BEATRICE. The CROWN PRINCE FREDERICK WILLIAM and his family will also attend.

IT is not so long since the United States reduced their ordinary rate of letter postage from three cents to two cents, and now a further concession to the public has been made, not in the matter of cost, per letter; but in doubling the weight of mail matter that can be sent for 2 cents. Whereas half an ounce was the maximum of weight for one postage it is now one ounce. Can MR. CARLING do nothing in this direction?

CANADIANS will hear with pleasure of the approaching visit of ARCHDEACON FARRAR to the Dominion and the States. Possibly no dignitary connected with the Church of England at the present time has a more general reputation in America than the Archdeacon, who is sure of receiving a specially hearty welcome at the hands of the temperance party both in Canada and the States. The Archdeacon sails for Quebec, it is stated, in September next. It is possible that his visit will extend also to the Northwest and British Columbia.

THE banks and banking institutions of London, England, number 101, and their aggregate paid capital amounts to over $494,000,000 (£98,828,021.) On the authority of MR. T. SKINNER's hand-book on London banks and kindred companies, 68 out of the 101 have their head offices in that city, 13 being colonial banks, 12 being foreign banks and 8 being Scotch and provincial companies. Besides the paid up capital of £98,828,021 the shareholders of the limited companies are liable for a further £145,454,648. The deposits amount to £472,802,043. The increase thus shown over the figures given a year ago is largely due to the conversion of Glyn's Bank into a company, but there is otherwise a growth in the resources of the London money market.

PERSONAL JOURNALISM.

In its comments upon the Pall Mall Gazette's revelations anent the immorality of London, the San Francisco Chronicle, on reproducing the first dispatch into its editorial columns, says: Our object in reproducing this intelligence in these columns is to make it a text for a discussion of the subject of personal journalism. The Pall Mall Gazette is one of the most Conservative papers published in the English metropolis. We do not apply the term in its political sense, for the Gazette professes the principles of the Liberal party. We use conservative as a synonym for extreme care and respect for traditions. In other words, the Gazette would be classed as a highly respectable paper by all Englishmen. Yet we find this "highly respectable" journal engaged in the sensational task of exposing an immoral traffic in young girls and denouncing the worthlessness of the laws in relation to the matter. But worse than all, it has actually engaged in "personal journalism," and has perpetrated the outrageous crime of "mentioning the names of several men who hold prominent positions in London society, who have been connected with the infamous business."

Let us ask the question, what would be the result if a San Francisco journal attempted to emulate the feat of this English journal? It is a fact notorious to those familiar with the ways of the town, that many of our representative men are debauchers of the innocent and virtuous. The licentiousness of many of our wealthy men is a byword and a reproach to the community. It is not only in London that young girls are led astray and beguiled into dens to gratify the passions of immoral men. The work is carried on with tolerable openness in the comparatively modern city by the Golden Gate, and if all the scoundrels who now bask in the smiles of San Francisco society were to receive their just deserts for their infamous deeds of this nature, the accommodations at San Quentin and Folsom would be entirely too restricted.

We have before taken occasion to define the crime of "personal journalism." It is never perpetrated except against a rich scoundrel. A journal may with perfect safety hold up to scorn the actions of water front bummers or the despised hoodlum. Turn to your paper any morning and evening and see how often crime in low places is exposed and made odious in a hundred different ways. Does any one suppose that distinguished lawyers would be found to rail at the practice so long as it was confined within these limits? Bah! The inquiry excites a smile of derision. Any Tom, Dick or Harry in the city might be mentioned, and columns of contempt and derision hurled at them without a protest being raised. But, as we have said before, let a man with a million or two of money commit the most unpardonable outrages, and be referred to ever so gently, and the pack start out in full cry yelping "personal journalism."

Without personal journalism vice and roguery would be sure to get the upper hand in modern times. Personal journalism is the bulwark reared against its encroachment. Personal journalism is only another term for the "rascal's scourge." It will be a sorry day for society if the assassin's pistol or the rich man's coin ever prove effective enough to stop the hand engaged in the work of making crime odious by pointing out to the public their enemies. Crime cannot be checked with a parable. Its perpetrators must be held up to public scorn, and that cannot be accomplished by hiding names.

GEN. MIDDLETON's prolonged campaign in the Northwest is playing the deuce with the ordinary vocations of the country. He is keeping the militia away from their business and professions at home, and is accumulating all the transportation of the country at Fort Pitt till it suits his pleasure to send his troops home with it. He prevents all communication between the trading posts and Indians reservations there and the transport of any supplies. The result is not only a paralysis of the commerce of the region, but probable destitution for lack of supplies.

THE Toronto Monetary Times has entered upon its 19th volume and celebrates the event by appearing in an entire new outfit. In its new garb our Toronto namesake presents an exceedingly neat appearance. BRO. TROUT has labored patiently in building up the Monetary Times to its present influential position. On financial matters, trade and insurance questions the Times is an eminent authority. Its circulation and usefulness consequently is rapidly increasing. We wish it continued success.

LORD SALISBURY in his remarks in the House of Lords last week did not explain himself very clearly as to the future policy of the English government and its relations to foreign countries. In effect he said that the new ministry would take the policy of their predecessors and carry it out as well as they could. He did not speak at all hopefully of the situation in Central Asia, but hinted that the arrangements of the GLADSTONE ministry, whatever they were, would be accepted, and that the old BEACONSFIELD notion of a scientific frontier will not be insisted on. That is, the English will meet the Russian advance in Afghanistan, instead of waiting for it on the Indian frontier. The speech indicates that the new government thinks it can get more credit out of Egypt than out of Afghanistan. The Soudan frontier is to be defended and the financial complications is to be unraveled, if there is capacity in the Tory party to achieve that herculean task. In no event is Egypt to be "abandoned to her fate," whatever that may mean.

medicine is the first necessity for cure. Then the cathartic effect must be maintained, in a mild degree, just sufficient to prevent a recurrence of costiveness, and at the same time the liver, kidneys and stomach must be stimulated and strengthened.

Ayer's Pills

Accomplish this restorative work better than any other medicine. They are searching and thorough, yet mild, in their purgative action. They do not gripe the patient, and do not induce a costive reaction, as is the effect of other cathartics. All diseases proceeding from disorder of the digestive and assimilatory organs. The prompt use of AYER'S PILLS to correct the first indications of costiveness, averts the serious illnesses which neglect of that condition would inevitably induce. All irregularities in the action of the bowels — looseness as well as constipation — are beneficially controlled by AYER'S PILLS, and for the stimulation of digestive organs weakened by long-continued dyspepsia, one or two of AYER'S PILLS daily, after dinner, will do more good than anything else.

HERE AND ABROAD.

THE WONDERS OF THE OLD WORLD AND THE NEW.

The European Tourist—American Travel—The Wonders of Our Scenery—The Yosemite Yellowstone—The Prairies—Literary Idealizations.

["Nomis in Brooklyn Eagle.]

The charm of Europe largely is a thing of association. We have read of it, the scenes of the romances we have lingered over are laid in the Old World. Scotland is covered with the glamor of the genius of Scott and Burns; England's fields and hedges have royal places in the imagination because of the poetry, the stories we have read, while the mystery of the sea, the associations of a historic past, have given to the Old World a fact ground that affords royal settings to these older nations.

We actually know little of the wonders of our own land. It has no perspective, it lacks historic settings, its scenes have not been woven into the stories over which youth's imagination has dreamed, and it is true that while the Matterhorn and Jung Frau are familiar to us, Washburn and Tacoma are unknown. The lakes of England are catalogued in the topographies of every school boy; the New England ponds, which are larger and fairer, the Croton chain which has finer settings, are unvisited, unknown, unheard of. Distance charms, the near is unregarded.

The American can find within easy distance of his own home larger wonders than he can find across the sea. The writer went one day across Geneva lake—by cars no little distance—to stand within the shadows of the Gorge du Trient, never dreaming until in after years he stood in Watkin's Glen, that within half a day's ride of his own home there was a larger wonder. Set side by side the scenery of Europe and America! The pointed summits of the Alps are more picturesque than any of our mountains, but in grandeur of bulk and majesty of outline the Rockies far excel.

The water indeed comes down at Lenore with pleasant jets and sprays, Giesbeck with its transforming lights is wonderful, but hidden in New England woods, unknown, unhonored and unsung are cascades that excel them both, while Niagara puts to shame the waterfalls of the world, and the Bridal Veils of Yosemite laugh at the pettiness of the show cataracts of Europe.

The Vale of Lauderbrunnen is one of the fairest places in the heart of Europe. It is ideal in loveliness, with frowning cliffs, with the wreath of mist 800 feet in length, trailing its fleecy gossamers downward from the sky on the black surface of the mighty wall of stone. But what is the Lauderbrunnen beside the Yosemite. Put 1,000 lakes like this in one, stretch up the cliff 3,000 feet and double the long spray of silvery mist, make the tiny stream into the broad Merced river flowing through Emerald Vales, kissing the feet of El Capitans, and even then Lauderbrunnen has not been magnified into the fair Yosemite, with its mirror lakes, its placid river, sentineled by the eternal cliffs.

The cedars of Lebanon are pigmies beside the Mariposa pines; the relics of the lake cities of Switzerland are modern compared with the old tenements of the moulders, and Europe has no antiquity of perished races to antique and wonderful as the cliff cities of Arizona and New Mexico. The groves of Sorrento find a peer in the orange gardens in the suburbs of Los Angelos. There may be on the Himalayan slopes fairer pastures than those on the New England hills. The vale of Cashmere in India may rival the beauties of the "Garden of the Gods," and pleasant Manitou, in Colorado, but one must seek far and long in the old world to find fairer scenes than are within easy distance of our own homes.

Unless the writer's eyes in seeing and reading of the marvels of the world have played him false, there is nothing on the globe to equal the marvels of the great national Yellowstone park. The territory between its wonders is a park excelling the game preserves of England, with a grass as green as that of the old ancestral lawns rimmed round with mountains, with forests dark and dense, with turbulent rivers breaking into cataracts and rapids. The Icelandic geysers are but toys beside these monsters, whose flow makes the source of rivers; there are nowhere else such marvels of crystal architecture as are made here at the mammoth springs; the "mud pots" of Norris Basin are worthy of the imagination of Dante, while the prismatic pool of "Hell's Half Acre" will find no rival until, by an alchemy yet to be discovered, the rainbow can be caught and held in solution in some pool or lake. The Yellowstone lake rivals Constance, excels Leman and puts to shame Loch Lomond, while the great falls of the Yellowstone and the marvelous gorge, with its 2,000 feet of sheer and eight miles of length, with colors before which the russet tints of the Libyan desert are pale and lifeless, is peerless among the wonders of the globe.

The steppes of Tartary are not so limitless as the prairie stretches of the west, the rivers of Europe could be turned into the beds of the St. Lawrence and the Mississippi, and navigation would cease because of the lowness of the waters; the everglades of Florida match the lagoons of Holland, while the gray moss of Savannah show a grizzly age that the oldest Old World cities do not show. There is, too, the element of as great associations in the New as in the Old World. The dynasties of the red man are at least as rich in historic color as those of Picts and Scots, while the conquest of the Pilgrims, had they but fit historian, is as rich in heroism as the invasion of the Normans. It was said once of a fair heroine that "she had no poet and she died," and America suffers because she lacks the idealization of literary art. The American novel is a creation of the present generation. No novelist yet has done for our valleys what Blackmore has done for the home of Lorna Doone, and scenes of nature become pilgrim shrines because the poet's magic wand teaches them, rather than on account of their intrinsic beauty. It is said that the novels of Scott raised the value of every acre in the Highlands, and it is very certain that Byron made the fortunes of innumerable villages by the pilgrimage of Childe Harold. That we are not quite equitable to these romantic associations can be seen by the few places that have been brought into national importance by being made the scene of some sentimental tale. The village of Grand Pre, because of Longfellow's poem, has been made famous; it is the shrine of the pilgrim from every land, and its barn marshes have now a beauty they would have never seen had not Evangeline walked over them in the older days. The falls of Minnehaha call their waters into the gulf of sprays all unnoticed, until Hiawatha sang here his lover song; but the echoes of the moccasin linger yet, and men come and worship here.

New Process in Making Glassware.

(Exchange.)

A new process for making pressed glassware has been perfected, which is declared, it is said, to enable the old presses for all purposes. From ten to twenty pieces can be turned out by it per minute.

LIFE IN ALASKA.

ITEMS FROM A GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE'S NOTE-BOOK.

Belief in Evil Spirits—Courtship and Marriage—Bathing the Babies—Care of the Aged—Cremation.—A Good Custom.

[New York Times.]

"I haven't been in Alaska since 1876," said a former government employe who was stationed in that country for several years, "but from all I can hear the occupation of the land by increasing numbers of white people has not had the effect of changing the customs of the country, in some portions of it at least, to any great extent. The Indians still believe in evil spirits that inhabit the water; hold their slaves secretly, practice polygamy, and retain all their social and religious forms and ceremonies. They have their sorcerers, repudiate all relationship on the father's side, and live generally as they did under the rule of the Russian. There are muskrats and species of fish in Alaska waters which have strong and sometimes fatal toxic qualities if eaten, which they frequently are. Sickness always follows such indulgence, and it was no uncommon thing, when I lived in Alaska, to see an entire Kolosk village suffering from its effects. It is this tradition upon which the belief in evil spirits who live in the water and spread sickness and disease among the people is founded. They profess to hold communication with these spirits through their sorcerers, but they offer them no sacrifices and use no means to propitiate them.

"Marriage among these Indians is a peculiar institution; in fact, there is no marriage—simply the taking of wives. When a young Indian wants a wife he goes to his mother and tells her so. If she gives her consent he goes to where the lady of his heart is cooped up in her father's house, taking his next best friend with him. Through the latter he sends word to his inamorata that he is near and would wed. If she has a leaning toward the suitor she returns word to him by the friend that she is inclined to join her interests with his. He then takes presents to her and her parents, and having delivered them enters at once into the possession of his bride. There are no further ceremonies, except that a day later the couple must visit her relatives, and if she then has no complaint to make to them about her husband, they are given presents and the wedding is over. This may be repeated indefinitely, until an Indian may become as well-to-do in wives as a Mormon elder. Polygamy was practiced even by the so-called Christian tribes when I lived in the territory, and their evolution must have been rapid, from what I remember of them, if they have abandoned the practice.

"Dried salmon is the luxury of the Alaskan Indians, and the children begin to nibble it before they think of walking. The way they bring up children out there would hardly suit in this region. The mother carries her child about from the time it is born until it is able to creep, no matter where she goes. Until that time she keeps it wrapped in a sort of fur sack. The moment the young one shows a disposition to crawl she yanks the fur off of it, and then begins the building up of its constitution. This is done by giving it a souse in the sea or river every morning, and the chorus of yells that greets every village during this interesting ceremony is something terrific. The cries of the young ones are piteous, and, for fear that their maternal breasts might not be proof against these appeals for mercy, and thus fail to do their duty by their off-spring, the mothers do not perform the bathing rite themselves, but delegate some brother or sister to do the douting. These conscientious aunts and uncles vary the switch with the bath, in vain attempts to make the one overawe the noisy results of the other.

"There is one thing noticeable among these half civilized tribes, and is creditable withal. Their old disabled members are carefully attended to, and orphans become a common charge and fare the same as the most favored children with living parents. These Indians are original cremationists. Their dead are burned as soon as death ensues; their ashes are interred on the spot, and a rude monument erected over them. They have crude ideas of immortality, believing that a man has a spirit that lives forever, but they know nothing of future rewards or punishments. Their heaven is a place where the spirits of birds congregate in one place—the common people by themselves, and slaves, if there are any, have still another dwelling place, unless a chief's slave should die with him, and then his spirit will be in eternal attendance on his master. It was formally the universal custom to kill the slave when the master died to insure the latter's spirit proper attendance. That custom was abolished by the Russian government, but it was still kept up in isolated places, and cases where it has been followed were well known as late as 1876.

"Some of the Indian tribes, notably the Kanaltas, traveling from place to place hunting or fishing, have the very excellent habit of leaving behind them when they break camp a quantity of kindling material at each new place for the use of the next travelers who come along, and who may possibly not be oversupplied with this very necessary item in their outfit. This kindling consists of some pitch pine and some dry moss and sticks all wrapped up in a curl of birch bark. The traveler who uses this and does not leave some for the next one who comes along, is sadly deficient in the etiquette of Alaskan travel."

A Chain of Lightships.

[Exchange.]

The Scientific American approves of the proposal to establish a chain of lightships across the Atlantic. It considers the general idea good, and to its practicability it states that the experience with lightships proves that a vessel properly constructed may be made to ride out the fiercest storms at anchor, save upon rare occasions, and that the light steel cables of recent construction have been successfully used to anchor ships in the deepest water "off soundings."

Black Birch Wood.

[New York Times.]

Black birch wood is prized in Europe for fine cabinet work. It seems, however, that there is a strong prejudice against black birch among architects in this country, although it is cheap, beautiful, and pretty durable. Carpenters find a difficulty in introducing it in finishing interiors of houses. Soon, however, like many another, of our long despised though valuable native woods, it will win its way to a very high place in popular estimation.

Jay Gould's Evenings.

[Philadelphia Times.]

Jay Gould spends his evenings at home, usually in reading. Ordinarily he retires at 10, rises at 6 o'clock in the summer and 7 in winter. Until recently he was indifferent as to his diet, to the detriment of his health, but under the advice of physicians he is now more careful and frequently consults a French cook he has engaged.

A Hint to Orators.

[Henry B. Stanton.]

Dr. Beecher once said to us at the seminary when giving a lecture in oratory: "Young gentlemen," said he, "don't stand before a looking-glass and make gestures. Never mind your gestures. Pump yourself brim full of your subject till you can't hold another drop, and then knock out the bung and let nature caper."

We seldom recognize a truth when we first see it, and never realize its value until we have neighbored with it a time.

Sixteen thousand eight hundred and twenty-five families in Boston were provided with free soup during the past winter.

THE CONVICT'S RETURN.

[Poetry.]

Back to the home, oh, sweetest place on earth,
Back, with a lifetime left behind,
Back to the place I deemed so little worth,
When I, alas! was blind.
Softly I lift the latch and peep within;
There, the humble cot, the rustic porch
I see, as in a dream, through grief and sin,
Lighted by memory's torch.

How very dear, how best of all it seems—
This little cottage of my happy youth;
Just as it was in many, many dreams,
Just as it is in truth.
There, at the window, near the climbing rose,
My mother's tender smile was wont to beam;
Here, where the myrtle greenest grows,
I loved to idly dream.

My pulses throb! My brain with gay delight
Reels madly, as the one who quaffs too free
The nectar from a sparkling goblet bright;
Ah! sweetest draught to me.
Oh, happy, golden youth! Again I live,
(Forgetting all the weary, wicked past),
Humble and good; forgiven, I forgive
And strive for right at last.

APPROACHING VENICE.

[Cor. Detroit Free Press.]

Venice is not a great railroad center. I think there is but one iron road leading there. The train stops at a little wayside station that reminded me of the wild, uncivilized stations of western America. It is hard to believe that you are within a couple of miles of Venice. Here there is a dreary wait while the Italians, with the calm, unruffled methodicalness of a people with several thousand years of leisure behind them and the same length of time ahead, collect the tickets.

A railroad ticket is a continual surprise to an Italian railroad official. It has always a pleasing novelty for him. He reads both sides with care and interest. He never punches it. His respect for it is too great. Occasionally you have to stop off at big stations and take in the ticket to the chief official, who regards it affectionately, stamps it with care and sometimes, writes his autograph on it. A person, traveling through Italy thus collects all the autographs of the principal men on the road. When the tickets are collected the train moves slowly on and comes to an apparently interminable embankment with the shallow ready salt water on each side.

Away to the left appears Venice. The sight is most disappointing. It reminds me of the classic regions of Saginaw or Bay City, the New Jersey marshes or the low land below London. To the right are seen gondolas seemingly waterlogged, being propelled towards the city. I thought that some unwise gondoliers had rashly ventured away from the canals and had got their boats filled. The fact was that these were the water works of Venice! They go out to where a river tumbles over a dam, and shove their boats underneath the waterfall. Then they work their way back and empty the water in the locked well of Venice—land-locked and padlocked. After a run of a mile or so the train enters the dark station. A person feels cold and oppressed. The place is as romantic as a Chicago freight shed. One feels like taking the next train back. He is ready and willing to write down the famous Queen of the Sea as a swindle.

A Chinese Oath.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

In a Mongol murder case in San Francisco the following oath was administered to each of the Chinese witnesses: "This is to inform the spirits of the gods, also the evil spirits and the demons, all to descend here to hear, oversee, and examine into the case of Wong Ah Foo, charged with murdering Loi Ah Gow. If I come here to swear profanely and tell the untruth, or not according to the facts of the case, I humbly beg the Celestial and terrestrial spirits to relieve Loi Ah Gow's grievance and to punish the false witness immediately, and to arrest his soul. May he die under a sword, or die on the half-way of the sea, and have no life to return to China. This is the true and solemn declaration of oath sworn by my own mouth and signed by my name by my own hand. Dated this —— day, second month, in the eleventh year of Quong Sol."

It is believed that all who take this oath will testify truthfully, as the Celestials believe that if they should perjure themselves after passing through the ceremony they will die an everlasting death, and that the gates of the Flowery Kingdom will be closed upon them.

Straightening Up a Chimney.

[Exchange.]

It was discovered on examination not long ago that a chimney eighty feet high at a machine shop at Holyoke, Mass., was about forty-two inches out of perpendicular. The method employed in righting was quite simple. A harness was located under the cornice, and two others below the first. Two lever jackscrews were placed under the girders of one of the harness on one side and six jackscrews similarly on the other side. The earth was then carefully loosened about the chimney on the opposite side from that of its inclination and water poured in, after which the jackscrews were turned gradually, and the earth again loosened and dampened with the hose. After this process had been several times repeated the earth was puddled, and the whole stands now properly righted.

Quieted the Bully.

[Heidelberg Zeitung.]

The bullying manner of the German students is proverbial, as is also their mania for dueling. It was at Heidelberg that a quiet citizen leaving the cars said to a swaggering student.

"Sir, you are crowding me! Keep back a little bit, sir!"

The student turned fiercely, and said, in a loud tone, "Do you not like it? Well, sir, I am at your service whenever you please!"

"Oh, thank you!" said the traveler. "Your offer is very kind, and you may carry my valise to the hotel for me."

The student fled amidst shouts of laughter.

How the Editor Got Real Champagne.

[Chicago News.]

The following, which the editor of a newspaper in a large town in France published the other day, is well worth reproducing: "The wine merchant who sold me last week a bottle of lemonade flavored with vitrol for a bottle of champagne is requested to send me, within twenty-four hours, a bottle of genuine champagne, failing which his name and address will be made public."

It is said that next day the good editor was inundated with first-class champagne from every wine merchant in the town.

Where There's a Will There's a Way.

[Danielsonville (Conn.) Transcript.]

In a corner of Windham county there lived some years ago a man of considerable wealth. He knew he was near his death, and sent for a lawyer to make his will. His wife and daughter were present, and greedily watched the proceedings. After most generously providing for them, the sick man directed the lawyer to designate $500 to his aged sister, who was needy. The wife and daughter remonstrated angrily. Quietly the sick man said: "Make it $1,000 for my sister." Another protest from the vultures. "Make it $1,500, squire," coolly said the legator. "You shall not!" shouted the sweet-souled females. "Make it $2,000," said the will-maker serenely, and here the selfish fools concluded it was policy to hold their tongues. The lawyer has kept the secret for years, but somehow it has leaked out.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters: I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

Poverty and Suffering.

I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it.

—Messrs. Burris & De Lapenotiere are asking for tenders for work in connection with the Victoria Club, corner of Yates and Broad streets.

—A letter from Dog Creek says that on June 20, eighty head of Mr. Harper's cattle swam the Fraser and started down country. The price is $36 a head in that district.

—The steamer Rithet was hauled off the bank near Hammond yesterday afternoon by the Yosemite and Reliance. She is slightly strained, but otherwise uninjured.

—Mr. C. Todd, S. M., has had his hands full at Eagle Pass Landing, disposing of liquor cases. A large sum in the way of fines has been added to the provincial exchequer.

—C. D. Rand has resumed business and has taken an office on Bastion street over Dr. Chipp's where he will carry on business as a real estate broker and insurance agent.

—A hole was put through the last of the Bray tunnels, on the C. P. R., a few days ago and it is expected that all will be finished up by the 15th July. Tunnel No. 2, 335 feet long, was completed in two months and ten days.

—Recent telegrams from Chemanius state that the row referred to in our dispatch yesterday was only a slight one between a foreman and a gang of Chinamen. No one was killed.

—A pair of handsome vases, valued in England at one hundred guineas, constituted one of the presents given this morning to an accomplished and beautiful young bride.

—Chas. A. Semlin, Esq., M. P. P., was in Kamloops on Saturday, on his way home from attending the Nicola celebration of Dominion Day. He speaks highly of Nicola and its people, and thinks this a prosperous year in that direction.

—Acting Quartermaster-Sergeant Grogan, N.W.M.P., has been sent from Calgary to Beaver Station, B. C., with a detachment of mounted police. They relieved the special constables appointed by the British Columbia authorities.

—Colonel Hewitt, commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston, has offered Mr. W. Warner, of Kamloops, nephew of Mr. Tunstall, government agent, one of the commissions in the British army, recently appropriated for distribution among the graduates of that institution.

—A correspondent in this city, signing himself O. N. M., writes the Toronto Monetary Times enquiring if the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States is a perfectly reliable company to purchase an annuity from. The Times replies that it is a thoroughly reliable company.

—It appears that Lieut.-Governor Dewdney's troubles are to him of little moment. A few evenings since he and Mrs. Dewdney gave a grand ball in the Regina council chamber. The affair proved to be the most brilliant event ever held in Regina and was largely attended.

—The Northern Pacific Railway in the course of three days carried east from Wallula, W. T., 1100 head of cattle for export and brought west for to be fed twenty-six car loads. This is a class of trade that will be of great value to the C. P. R., as in our upper country are to be found large areas of pasture land, on which vast herds of cattle can feed.

—The Seattle Post-Intelligencer says: "The Victorians are beat every time when they put their babies into competition with Seattle babies for beauty. A few months ago a contest of this kind arose, 40 children entered, and the baby of Mr. and Mrs. R. Howard, bore here, took the prize. Last week another contest was entered into, the five months' old child of J. Corbett, of Seattle, being decided the prettiest of those entered." Well, if Victoria has been beaten in the quality of one or two, she can excel in quantity every time.

Whitewashing its Blackened Reputation.

Even in the matter of an apology the Colonist cannot refrain from showing the cloven foot, and mistaking THE TIMES for a looking glass, in which it sees its own image. The Colonist was informed during the early months of this year that Mr. J. Heywood did not have any connection with THE TIMES, directly or indirectly. That information would have been sufficient for a journal possessing any principle; but as is well known, when driven to the wall, the Colonist will resort to everything and anything, to white-wash its blackened reputation.

Coming to Victoria.

The Idaho, which takes the place of the Geo. W. Elder on the trip from San Francisco, left San Francisco yesterday, bringing 300 tons of freight and the following passengers: B Fisch, G A Scott, L B Griffith, A Frank, W Frank, Mrs Banster and boy, W T Porter, C Porter H Green, W H Tuttle, G S Eller, M B Magenser, Frank Young. She is due on Thursday.

Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this developes in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or eruptions, or takes the form of rheumatism, or organic diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil.

HYMENEAL.

Marriage of Mr. Morley and Miss Fell this Morning.

The marriage nuptials of Mr. H. A. S. Morley and Miss Jessie Fell, second daughter of Mr. James Fell, in Christ Church Cathedral this morning attracted to that sacred edifice a large number of spectators, the major portion of whom were of the fair sex. The event took place at a little after nine o'clock. The wedding party began to arrive at nine. The groom, dressed in morning suit, supported by Mr. Worsfold as groomsman, arrived and took his position near the altar. The organ then began to peal forth appropriate music, when the bride leaning on the arm of her father, preceded by her bridesmaid, Miss Hattie Young, marched to the altar where she was joined by the bridegroom and the beautiful, impressive marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church was proceeded with. The accomplished bride looked charmingly lovely. She was dressed in cream lace, with a square train of white satin; corsage of white satin trimmed with lace and orange blossoms, a wreath of orange blossoms and tulle veil. In her hand she carried a beautiful boquet. Miss Young, the bridesmaid, looked remarkably well. She was dressed in cream nuns veiling; handsomely trimmed with lace; white bonnet and a bouquet.

The guests were Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Smithe; Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson; Capt. G. G. Walker, Capt. and Mrs. Spalding; Mrs. Whitlaw; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Fell; Mr. Thornton Fell and Mr. and Mrs. Moss.

The ceremony concluded the wedding party were driven in carriages to the residence of Mr. Fell, View street, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of. The usual toasts were proposed and responded to; all expressing the best wishes for the future happiness of the newly married couple.

The presents to the bride, as might be expected, were both numerous and costly; some coming all the way from England, attesting the high esteem in which she was held by her numerous friends both in Victoria and abroad.

Apartments having been secured on the Queen of the Pacific the party were driven to the steamer at noon where they embarked for San Francisco on their honeymoon trip. A wide circle of friends and acquaintances wish them a safe passage and return, and a prosperous voyage throughout life.

Accident Near Eagle Pass.

We learn from the Sentinel that while Matthias Sutherland was sleeping in his tent 11 miles from Eagle Pass Landing, Sunday about midnight a tree fell across him, causing death. A bush fire was near by and had burnt the roots and lower part of the tree and it came down with the fatal result stated. Deceased was a young man of some 28 years of age, and has been employed along the railway work for years. His home, was at or near Dorchester, London, Ont., and he had came out to the Pacific coast in 1880. He was industrious and economical and accumulated considerable money, intending returning home next season. Recently he and Mr. James Copeland had taken a sub-contract upon the Kyle work and had just pitched tent preparatory to commencing operations. Dr. Simpson was in attendance as soon as possible after the accident, but life was extinct before his arrival; he only lived half an hour after the terrible crash, and did not recover consciousness. A coffin was secured at the Landing and Tuesday's Peerless brought the remains to Kamloops. As Messrs. Jno. McKinnon, J. Grace and Munroe accompanied the remains down, a number of friends here joined and the funeral was respectably attended the same afternoon, Rev. Mr. Horlock officiating. Poor "Mat," as he was familiarly called by his many friends, reposes alongside of his equally unfortunate companions, A. McKinnon and J. Davis, whose death we chronicled a short time since. They were friends in life and sleep the sleep of death in adjoining graves.

ST. ANN'S CONVENT.

Midsummer Examination of Pupils—Interesting Exercises.

The usual midsummer examination of the children of St. Ann's Convent was held to-day, and was presided over by His Grace Archbishop Seghers. There were present, among others, Rev. Father Jonckau, Father Maudart, Father Heynen and the Rev. Mother of the Order from Lachine, Montreal. The examination was divided into two parts—in the forenoon and afternoon. In the morning the junior pupils were subjected to a thorough and searching series of questions in the several branches of study, including vocal and instrumental music. The promptness and general accuracy with which the little children replied was evidence of careful training. A pleasing incident of the proceedings was the presentation of an address to His Grace the Archbishop, which was delivered by Miss Esther Walsh. It gave expression to the happiness the scholars felt in the presence of His Grace, and hoped that the examination would prove satisfactory to him. Afterwards the senior classes were examined in the various branches and showed great proficiency in their studies. In addition to the usual examination, very handsome pieces of fancy needle work were exhibited, one, the finding of Moses by Pharoah's daughter, by Miss Nash, and a crayon sketch by Miss Emma Frye were very superior and artistic in finish. Numerous samples of plain sewing, most creditable to the little misses, were also shown. The children in this institution are taught to make their own clothes, and to mend, darn and cook, beyond a doubt the most essential branches they could be taught. The school, we were glad to learn is well attended, the daily average being about one hundred and fifty. Owing to the examination taking place so late, many of the pupils were not present. During the day, the exercises were varied with excellent vocal and instrumental music, recitations and songs. A glimpse of the happy faces of the children, beaming with pleasure and intelligence, is sufficient to convince one that a noble work is being done in developing the intellectual and domestic faculties of the children.

News Items from Yale.

Our Yale correspondent writes that on the night of the 9th inst., about half-past eleven o'clock, the people were alarmed by the continuous shriek of the steam whistle at the machine shop, and on looking out saw the sides of the mountains brilliantly illuminated. It proved to be the railway work shops apparently in one mass of flames. Fortunately there were plenty of men on hand, who worked nobly, and their efforts were successful in getting the best of the fire just before the water in the fire tanks began to give out. The roof of the shop and north end of the building were totally destroyed. The whole inside of the building is one charred mass of blackened timbers. The loss, though serious, is trifling to what it might have been had it not been confined to the machine shop by the noble efforts of the men. Had it got into the neighboring buildings the loss would have been very great. It is hoped that the shops will be in operation again in a few days.

Teams and pack trains are still loading here to run alongside, and in opposition to, the C. P. N. as far as Spence's Bridge. The contractor still refuses to sell tickets from above to Yale.

Fires were raging near Emory yesterday afternoon, but a timely shower of rain put the fire out last evening.

The fire in the machine shop was caused by some one mis-handling a lamp or torches in the proximity of oily waste near the engine.

Opera Season.

The Casino Troubadours Company, comprising among its principals Miss Louise Lester, Mr. Edwin Stevens, Miss Louise Edgar, and Mr. Henry Louis, will hold the boards at Philharmonic Hall next Friday and Saturday evenings, and will give a matinee on Saturday. Their programme, together with the favorable reputation the parties bear, should ensure a most attractive entertainment. They will present the "Lovely Galatea," which piece has scored much success in New York. Together with this will be given the Miserere not from "Il Trovatore," and also the great Inferno scene from "Satanella." The latter includes a grand transformation scene. Reserved seats are on sale at Waitt's music store.

Heavy Damages Claimed.

Actions for damages have been entered in a San Francisco court against R. Dunsmuir & Son, by Henry Roberts and Hannah Hoskins. The former was an employee in the collieries of Mr. Dunsmuir at Wellington at the time of the explosion one year ago, and received some injuries to his head. The woman is the widow of one of the victims of the catastrophe. The aggregate amount sued for is $71,000. It does not seem reasonable or just that a San Francisco court should have jurisdiction in the case. If plaintiffs have ground for action it must be in this country and against the firm that owns the colliery—a different one from the San Francisco firm.

A Shipping Agency.

Captain Clements has opened a shipping agency on Langley street, near the Angel Hotel. Ships will be supplied with men at short notice, as well as labor of all kinds to parties requiring it. There is a good opening for an office of this kind in Victoria, and it will be found a great convenience to masters of vessels, contractors, &c.
